FIRST QUARTER REPORT
MARCH 31, 2016

LETTER TO SHAREHOLDERS

---

Dear Fellow Shareholders,

Similar to the beginning of last year, 2016 has already seen its share of market volatility. Equity markets suffered the worst start to a calendar year in a decade as economic turmoil in China and further deterioration in oil prices led to negative returns in global markets. Investor concerns around rising interest rates and a strong dollar contributed to a S&P 500 decline of 10% in the first six weeks of the year. Perceptions and market sentiment changed quickly, however. A rebound in commodity prices, easy global monetary policy, and better-than-expected U.S. economic data spurred a rally off the February lows. Major U.S. indexes not only erased early losses, but posted a gain for the quarter. The total return on the S&P 500 was 1.4% for the first three months. After lagging for three years, the Energy sector (up 4.0%) and Basic Materials sector (up 3.6%) both outperformed the broader market.

Historically, oil prices and the stock market tend to move independently. During the first quarter of this year they moved in lockstep, a rare occurrence. Initially, a decline in oil prices provided good news for the economy. But as oil continued to decline, the impact on capital spending, credit concerns, and overall global economic growth weighed on the markets. Oil fell from $37 per barrel at the start of the year to a low of $26 per barrel in mid-February, sending stocks lower in the process. The oil price rebound to $38 per barrel by the end of the quarter was a key catalyst behind the market's recovery. In addition, Janet Yellen's comments in March suggesting the Fed would proceed cautiously with any future rate increases provided further support.

In the portfolio, we retained our bias to higher-quality companies with strong balance sheets, strategic assets, and low costs of production. The portfolio continues to be positioned defensively, favoring companies that are more likely to emerge in a stronger competitive position when the cycle eventually turns.

During the quarter, we added to our position in ConocoPhillips. In February, ConocoPhillips' management made the difficult decision to significantly reduce the dividend. Despite the market's initial negative reaction, the dividend cut has enhanced their long-term competitive position. Along with the added operational and financial flexibility, the company is positioned as one of the lowest breakeven cost producers in the E&P sector and is among those with the lowest balance sheet risk. With its large resource base, ConocoPhillips should be able to maintain production this year and grow production by an annual rate of 2% to 4% over the next 10 years.

In Basic Materials, we established a position in H.B. Fuller, a manufacturer of adhesives and sealants for use in construction, automotive, and other end-markets. Following a multi-year restructuring effort that included management changes and asset sales, the current management team is focused on growth and returns, especially in those areas where the company can compete on a global scale. We expect margins and free cash flow to improve in response to lower raw material prices, operating cost reductions, and improved operational efficiency. Modest sales growth is also anticipated.

In December, Dow and DuPont announced a $130 billion merger of equals. The combined company offers the potential for operational improvement and cost synergies that we believe were not fully appreciated by the market. We added DuPont to the portfolio to increase our weighting in the new entity, DowDuPont.

For the three months ended March 31, 2016, the total return on the Fund's net asset value ("NAV") per share (with dividends and capital gains reinvested) was 3.2%. This compares to total returns of 3.6% for Dow Jones U.S. Oil & Gas Index, 4.2% for Dow Jones Basic Materials Index, and 7.8% for Lipper Global Natural Resources Funds Index over the same time period. The total return on the market price of the Fund's shares for the period was 2.0%.

For the twelve months ended March 31, 2016, the Fund's total return on NAV was -14.2%. Comparable returns for Dow Jones U.S. Oil & Gas Index, Dow Jones U.S. Basic Materials Index, and Lipper Global Natural Resources Funds Index were -17.5%, -8.5%, and -15.1%, respectively. The Fund's total return on market price was -16.4%.

During the quarter, the Fund paid distributions to shareholders in the amount of $2.8 million, or $.10 per share, consisting of $.03 net investment income and $.05 long-term capital gain, realized in 2015, and $.02 of net investment income realized in 2016, all taxable in 2016. On April 14, 2016, an additional net investment income distribution of $.10 per share was declared for payment on June 1, 2016. These constitute the first two payments toward our annual 6% minimum distribution rate commitment.
