Shareholders who were entitled to receive the investment income dividends and the capital gain distributions, described above, should report them for federal income tax purposes as follows:

I. The investment income dividends, whether received in stock or cash, should be reported by you as ordinary dividend income. Pursuant to the tax treatment for dividend income under the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017, 77.5% of the investment income dividends paid by the Fund in 2021 qualify as “qualified dividend income (QDI)” taxable at 0%, 15%, or 20% depending on your taxable income. The enclosed Form 1099-DIV has the applied percentage in the amount in box 1b, if applicable. In addition, Column (A) in the table above indicates the percentage of each investment income dividend that qualifies for the 50% dividends-received deduction allowed certain corporations with respect to dividends received from domestic corporations.

II. The short-term capital gain distributions, whether received in stock or cash, should be reported by you as ordinary dividend income and are subject to the same tax treatment and tax rates for ordinary income as discussed in paragraph I above, i.e. 77.5% qualify as QDI for the preferential tax rates given to QDI. These amounts are included in your enclosed Form 1099-DIV under dividend income and are included in the totals in boxes 1a and 1b, if applicable. In addition, Column (A) above indicates the percentage of each short-term capital gain distribution that qualifies for the 50% dividends-received deduction allowed certain corporations with respect to short-term capital gain distributions received from domestic corporations.

III. The long-term capital gain distributions, whether received in stock or cash, should be reported as a “capital gain distribution” and treated by you as long-term capital gains regardless of the length of time you have held the shares. The total capital gain you received is included in your enclosed Form 1099-DIV in box 2a. Capital gain distributions do not qualify for the dividends-received deduction described in paragraph I above.

The Fund had 0% of ordinary dividend income derived from U.S. Government Obligations in 2021. This information is provided to assist you in preparing your state tax return.
